BALTIMORE LAB SCHOOL APPOINTS A NEW ASSOCIATE HEAD OF SCHOOL

The search for new Associate Head of Baltimore Lab School: a division of The Lab School of Washington, culminates in the appointment of David Lightfoot

Baltimore Lab School is thrilled to announce the appointment of our new Associate Head of School, Mr. David Lightfoot. A committee of faculty, several members of the Board of Trustees, and Katherine Schantz, Head of School, determined that David possesses the qualities of passion, knowledge and leadership that will ensure a successful second decade for Baltimore Lab School.

David brings over sixteen years of well-rounded independent school teaching and leadership experience to Baltimore Lab. He joins the community from The Pennington School in Pennington, NJ, where he is the current Dean of Academic Affairs. In addition to his current position, he has also served as Assistant Director of Pennington's Center for Learning, a program designed to prepare students with learning differences for secondary education and successful adult life. He is passionate about the role of art in education, and is a former actor, theater teacher and director.

David and his wife will relocate to Baltimore City and will assume the position on July 1, 2011. Baltimore Lab School's community welcomes David Lightfoot as our Associate Head of School as we continue to provide an exceptional educational experience for students with learning differences from the greater Baltimore area.

BALTIMORE LAB SCHOOL: a division of the Lab School of Washington, is a non-public MSDE approved Day School for bright students with moderate to severe learning disabilities in grades 1-12. The school's innovative arts-based curriculum helps young people overcome difficulties in reading, writing, and math, while preparing them for a rewarding range of college and career choices. Baltimore Lab School offers rigorous academics, a wide range of athletics, after-school classes, and a summer program. Location: 2220 St. Paul Street, Baltimore, MD 21218.
